Character Description:

Appearance:

Captain Krakensworth is an olive-skinned, Caucasian sea captain with a distinct half-gloomy thief and half-sailor design. He sports a black beanie, dark grey balaclava, round and black photochromic glasses for headwear. For torso, he wears a green-ish light grey sweater underneath and a much darker grey(slightly green) captain's coat with gold buttons on top. The coat is a little battered and torn, even has some signs of scorched and seaweed-oxidized cloth near the overall coat and sleeve hem. Wears old, thick, Turkish and light grey trousers. His face is unknown. The only detail of his face that are visible are his glowing eyes with very light grey iris around his dark grey pupils, looking as if he's blind. The skin around his eyes painted in black dye to try blending in with his balaclava's color. His glasses are still pretty good at hiding the glow of his eyes. Rocks a sewer pipe he found from the cabin of the sunken slave trade ship he escaped from after a failed firearm deal(Mostly caused by him), as well as his trusty, silver and decent condition Welrod pistol.

Personality / Traits:

Hates pigeons because they keep dumping on his ships. Has a very weird habit of mixing accents and curses a lot but with power unlike any other sailor. Occasionally acts stupid regardless of the context. Is a mercenary, inventor and a crew captain, with each member from different parts of the world(Yet to be added). Is a businessman who stopped arms dealing and entered the world of automated underwater oil collection. Owns the oil monopoly in all of Caucasus or maybe even the whole world(Last one not legally recorded yet). The name of his main ship (a hybrid between a yacht and a superstructured ship) is St. Octavia. It was called after his passed and ever-depressed Italian wife, Octavia, who died when they both got attacked on their yacht by an overly-mutated Leviathan, yes, you guessed it, a Kraken. Thus, leading to his gradual entrance to the criminal scene.

Design Source:

The initial visual appearance of Captain Krakensworth is represented by my own Dead Ahead: Zombie Warfare themed sprite I made in Aseprite, a pixel art design app, which I currently use as my Discord account avatar. A rather public appearance is a Minecraft skin created by me, which was uploaded / shared on The Skindex / https://www.minecraftskins.com/skin/23307400/captain-krakensworth/.
It serves as the baseline design for all iterations of the character in various media.
